How to talk about your MENTAL HEALTH at work

1. When talking to someone make sure you feel trusted, comfortable and are in a safe environment.
2. Reveal as much as you're comfortable with.
3. Remember you are not alone. 1 in 4 people experience a mental health problem.
4. Plan a private meeting with your boss or manager to express how you feel.
5. If you are worried to talk to your boss or manager, ask a supportive colleague to help you.
6. Try speaking to HR and seeing what support they can offer.
7. If you are struggling, ask for a note from your doctor to help explain your situation.
8. You do not need to go into too much detail about your personal life.
9. Ask for professional help. Your employer should have confidential services and support in place for you.
10. Understand and learn about your legal rights that protect your mental health at work.

Kurz dále nabízí:

You are a doctor. Look at the following possible problems and think of what advice you would give a patient if:

- They were stung by a bee.
- They had any broken bones.
- They felt sick after eating some food.
- They cut their finger.
- They got sunburnt.

You are a patient. Look at the following possible problems and think of what you would say to a doctor.

Think of the following:

- How did it happen
- When did it happen
- How much will the visit to the doctor cost.

Possible problems:

- You fell off your bicycle. You think you might have broken your wrist.
- A bee stung you two days ago and it still hurts.
- You got badly sunburnt.
- You ate some food that you are allergic to and you now have a rash.
- You cut your finger in the kitchen.
